Child Protection Procedures Summary

Sample document for demonstration only

This one-page summary explains what happens if a staff member is concerned that a child may have been harmed or is at risk. It is based on the Department of Education’s Child Protection Procedures.

Any concern is passed to the Designated Liaison Person, who decides whether to report it to Tusla. Where there is a reasonable concern, the school makes a report, and parents are told unless doing so could put the child at greater risk.

Parents who wish to see the full procedures can ask for them at the school office.
